Symposium on Political Economy

The Network considers it of academic interest to focus its attention on specific methodological theme and issues for the dual purpose of updating latest debates and articulating directions for future enquiry. This will take the form of publishing in the Methodus essays and notes revolving around a particular theme in the form of a symposium.

The forthcoming issue of Methodus (Vol.4, No.1) to appear in June, 1992 will feature, among other articles, a symposium on the following theme:

The Meaning and Purposes of Political Economy

[Note: In this issue, H.W. Arndt puts forth his opinion on purposes of political economy. We hope that his paper will stimulate thoughts among readers and generate further discussion on the topic. Members are invited to submit notes, articles etc. related to different dimensions of this theme no later than April 15, 1992. There is no absolute limit on the length of submission, although they should preferably not exceed 30 double-spaced typed pages.]
